Circleville Set For Biggest Game Of Year

Washington C. H. Football Tilt May Make Heroes Of 'Our Boys'

Undeclared and untied Circleville high school football team will have a final crack at glory tonight when it meets the Washington Blue Lion for the South Central Ohio League championship.

From all the street chatter in Circleville this week, it would seem probable the whole town would trek toward Fayette County for the championship battle.

Last Tuesday, 650 tickets were gobbled up in no time. Next day saw 500 more disappear as swiftly. In addition, localities with drag and relatives in Washington C. H. procured more ducats.

Mayor Thurman I. Miller has ordered that when Circleville high school returns with victory from Washington C. H. all business houses and homes are to fly flags Saturday in celebration and "welcome to the champs."

Many reported that since none of the tickets called for a reserved seat, they would take lunch boxes, appear at the Washington C. H. gridiron early to claim what bleacher seats might be available.

All day today, the weatherman has failed to smile on Pickaway and Fayette Counties.

HE EVEN declared light rain is expected tonight.

Normally, this would discourage the average football coach.

But not Circleville Head Coach Steve Brudzinski. To him, rain meant just one thing: a good break. He explained:

"Rain would be a fifth man in Washington's backfield—a fifth man who would fumble and slip and make a grand nuisance of himself."

Brudzinski and his right hand man, Tom Bennett, agree that "Circleville will win tonight if we play football the first half."

The locals have been notorious this year in showing the bulk of their power in the third and fourth quarters.

Bennett, coach of linemen, said Friday afternoon his charges were ready. He declared:

"That line can hold if it wants to."

On Circleville's team tonight will be seven seniors giving all they have in their last high school encounter, each looking for the chance to push home the first undefeated team this city has fielded in many, many years.

But the lad on whom Circleville patrons will have their attention will be a junior, playing his second year of varsity ball and a top candidate for a berth on an All-Ohio honor team.

HE IS SANDY HILL, rated as top backfield man in the SCO league and sparkling star of the Circleville team.

Hill, to date, has been THE player on the Red and Black squad, having personally toted 14 touchdowns, tossed seven touchdown passes and added 14 points with his magic toe.

Hill alone has scored 98 of the total 180 Circleville points to date, posing a four-way threat to all opposition he has faced.

In addition to his brilliant running, which nets him consistent gains, often for the whole route to the enemy end zone, Hill is equally capable as a passing star. His magic toe takes care of extra point worries and his punting is more than creditable.

But, unlike in earlier seasons games, Hill will not be alone in his attack against the Washington aggregation.

Junior Phiefer, relatively unknown to Circleville rooters during the early portion of the season, having played most of his games on the Tiger bench, will be along to give Hill all the help he needs.

HCL Strike Is Called

8 Million Germans In Quiet Walkout

FRANKFURT, Nov. 12—Major industries in the American and British occupation zones of Germany were paralyzed today by a general strike in which a reported eight million workers quit their jobs in protest of high cost of living.

The estimated of the total number of strikers was given in an announcement by Johannes Boeckler, chairman of the Bizonal Council of Trade Unions.

Boeckler acknowledged that many workers actually were forced to join the 24-hour strike in protest against high costs because of lack of transportation. Street car operators joined the walkout in all major towns.

Many small factories and shops engaged in usual business. Food shops were open and taxis and mortuaries maintained emergency service.

Boeckler said he had received a telegram from the Soviet-sponsored trade council in the Russian occupation zone expressing the solidarity of workers in Eastern Germany with the western workers.

MANY FIRMS, parties and organizations appealed to workers not to join in the walkout. Many factions appeared split on whether to support the work stoppage.

The bizonal executive council called on civil servants to work, declaring that a strike is dangerous to reconstruction and German economy.

Christian Democratic Party members in Hamburg distributed thousands of leaflets urging workers to disobey the strike order.

In the port of Bremen, however, longshoremen decided to strike contrary to express wishes of the military government.

Quiet prevailed in all major cities during the morning and there were no reports of any demonstrations or incidents.

Sheriff Charles H. Radeliff, unopposed Democratic incumbent spent a total of $202.48, his expenses account revealed. Biggest item was a $150 donation to the Democratic executive committee.

Democratic Incumbent A. L. Wilder showed an expense total of $194.50 in his winning race for clerk of courts. A $160 contribution was made to the party's executive committee and the remainder was spent on advertising.

Republican Edward Amey, unsuccessful candidate for clerk of courts, listed $111.55 as total expenses, all of which was spent for advertising.

John Keller, successful in his bid for reelection as a Democrat county commissioner, last week was the first to file his expense account. Reelection cost Keller a total of $308.97.

COMMAND COMES AFTER 11 YEARS

Democrats Faced With Job Of Heading Many Panels

COLUMBUS, Nov. 12—The Democrats, who haven't had one of their number as a chairman of an Ohio legislative committee since 1937, today find themselves in the unique position of having to find chairmen for 40 of them.

In the house, the Dems, by virtue of the 69-66 unofficial majority they tallied in the Nov. 2 elections, can rightfully claim the chairmanship of the 22 committees and the three subcommittees of the finance committee.

The hitch lies in the fact that the house has only 15 Democrats who served in the last session, when the Republicans boasted a 123-16 majority.

However, 16 other Dems have served previously in the house—prior to the 1947-48 biennium—so that it appears that there will be no need to place freshmen legislators at the helm of any committee.

THE SENATE is in somewhat similar shape. With only four holdovers, the Democrats suddenly find themselves with 18 chairmanships at their disposal. Here as in the house, members who served previous terms will help out in the embarrassing situation.

In the house two Democrats are starting their eighth terms—Mrs. Anna O'Neil of Akron and Pat Dunn of Strasburg. Because she served on the committee last year, Mrs. O'Neil could find herself in the position—unique for a woman—of heading the house finance committee, probably the most powerful group in either chamber.

In addition to originating the biennial appropriations bills, to provide the state with its operating capital, the chairman of the finance committee also holds year-around membership on the board of control and the emergency board.

Reps. Thomas J. Barrett, four-term member from Youngstown, and Ray M. White, two-term from Millersburg, might contest with Mrs. O'Neil for the chairmanship, as they also served on the committee last year. White also is a candidate for speaker.

On the education committee, A. B. Anderson of Piketon is the senior Democrat with four terms, followed by Elizabeth Gorman of Cleveland Heights, with three. The education committee, with the finance committee, passes on the controversial school subsidy bill.

DEMOCRATS are on record as promising additional aid to schools. Whoever is speaker—in addition (Continued on Page Two)

Suchow Victory Is Claimed

NANKING, Nov. 12—China's national defense ministry announced today that government troops have won an important victory over the Chinese Communist forces east of Suchow.

The announcement of the Nationalist victory came as one million men were reportedly locked in battle on the Suchow front in the Yangtze River Valley.

The ministry said that "more than 10,000 dead bodies were left by the Communists" after the Red troops made 40 night-time charges against Nationalist lines in that sector since Wednesday. The ministry also claimed that another 4,000 Communist soldiers surrendered.

The government said that Communist casualties on the east flank at Suchow now total 37,000 out of 160,000 men under the command of Red General Chen Yi in that sector.

NATIONALIST air force planes are continuing their pounding of Communist artillery positions and government sources said that up to Friday morning 70 percent of the field pieces had been blasted by air bombardment.

Sweeping down from the north after successful campaigns in Manchuria, Chinese Communist armies are attempting to pierce the lines of Nationalist government troops and crash through to take the rich prizes of Nanking and Shanghai.

Youth Hanged By Auto Window

KENT, Nov. 12—Funeral services were arranged today in Kent for four-year-old Thomas Finch, who strangled when his head caught inside a car window.

The child was found dead yesterday by a university student who noticed the boy's head hanging outside the window of a parked auto.

Police reported that the boy apparently climbed up on the side of the car, pushed his head through a half-opened window and fell off the auto.

However, Abe Greenlee, parking meter coin collector, declares Butch is a poor influence on the police force.

"Only this morning, between the police station and Court and Main streets, Butch was in five street fights with others of his kind. He does all right for himself, but he's getting kinda old," Abe observed.

Butch's pug-nosed ferocious appearance in the cop-house is belied by his wagging tail. Except for postmen who pass his home at 624 Beverly road, Butch hasn't an enemy in the world.

16 Jap Bosses Get Life Terms

TOKYO, Nov. 12—Gen. Hideki Tojo, the Japanese Pearl Harbor premier, was sentenced today to death on the gallows along with six other arch instigators of Japanese aggression and war crimes against humanity.

Sixteen top designers and leaders of Japan's conspiracy against world peace were sentenced to life imprisonment. The remaining two received lesser terms.

The Allied Far East Military Tribunal, which conducted the longest trial the world has ever witnessed, thus checked off the third member of the infamous Axis triumvirate of Hitler-Mussolini and Tojo.

For two and one-half years the counterpart of the Nuremberg trials had dragged on, reaching its climax today when bald-pated, inscrutable Tojo listened imperturbably to his death sentence.

The poker-faced, little war lord only bowed to the black-robed members of the 11-nation tribunal, and then turned away.

At that moment he did not seem like the man whose orders launched the infamous sneak attack on Pearl Harbor, the act which plunged the United States into World War II.

The dynamic Nippon leader had fully expected the supreme penalty. He had told his defense attorney earlier:

"I EXPECT that this will be a judgment of victor nations over the vanquished."

He had also sent a lock of his sparse hair and a clipped part of a fingernail to his wife—an old Japanese custom of men who expect to die away from home.

Defense attorneys predicted that Tojo and six other doomed Japanese war criminals would (Continued on Page Two)

'Mortal Sins' May Be Noted By President

KEY WEST, Fla., Nov. 12—Top administration leaders are speculating today on the degree of punishment, if any, President Truman will mete out to office holders who did not support him.

Democratic National Chairman J. Howard McGrath touched off the speculation when he told newsmen:

"The President is ready to forgive any venial sins but not mortal sins."

The Rhode Island senator made the statement when he was reminded that some high administration figures "sat on their hands" during the President's successful campaign.

Asked if these were headed for dismissal, he added:

"The President is not geared that way. There are some the President can't help forgiving." The President himself, who is resting after the campaign at the U. S. submarine base in Key West, has given no hint of his plans for reorganizing the administration.

McGrath defined a mortal sin, politically, as "one which kills the soul."

A Navy chaplain at the base said that mortal sin might be compared, in legal terms, to a felony and a venial sin to a misdemeanor.

McGrath refused to expand his cryptic statement except to add that "we're not forgetting our friends."

Man Sought In Slaying

Coed's Battered Body Is Found

BOULDER, Colo., Nov. 12—The Boulder County sheriff's office disclosed today that a former University of Colorado student is being sought for questioning in the brutal sex-slaying of a blonde 18-year-old coed from the university.

The victim was Theresa Foster, a freshman at the institution. Her ravished body was found yesterday six miles southeast of Boulder. She had been missing for more than 30 hours.

Authorities withheld the name of the former student being sought.

Officers said they were pressing a search for a "loner sex maniac."

Dr. Angelo Lapi, medical examiner from Denver who performed the autopsy, told police the pretty coed was the victim of a "brutal type sex murder by a maniacal individual."

Dr. Lapi said Miss Foster had been strangled, criminally assaulted and that three compound fractures of her skull had produced a brain hemorrhage. The physician said the wounds probably were inflicted by a pistol butt.

Royal Family Pacing Floor As Baby Is Awaited

LONDON, Nov. 12—Buckingham Palace physicians and nurses began a constant vigil today over Princess Elizabeth, whose first child is expected by the end of the week.

Sister Helen Rowe, the nurse in attendance, is remaining constantly at the side of her royal patient.

Sir William Gilliatt, gynecologist in charge of the case, is reported "reasonably confident" that the birth will not take place until sometime tomorrow.

But Sir John Weir, physician to the royal family, is said to believe that the awaited event may take place earlier.

The entire Buckingham Palace staff has gone on an emergency basis in momentary anticipation of the royal birth.

The expected child of the princess and her husband, Prince Philip, Duke of Edinburgh, will become second in the direct line of succession to throne whether it is a boy or girl.

Local Politicians Filing Election Costs Accounts

As deadline neared at 6:30 p. m. Friday, eight more candidates for elective office filed expense accounts with the Pickaway County board of elections.

Judge Sterling M. Lamb, defeated Republican incumbent for probate judge, listed his expense total at $393.82. The account showed a $50 contribution to the Republican campaign committee with the remainder spent in advertising.

Second largest account filed was by H. E. Louis, Republican, unopposed for state representa-

Senator Seeks Special Congress Aid For China

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12—Sen. Styles Bridges, (R) N. H., today called upon President Truman to summon a special session of Congress to consider new assistance for "desperate" China.

He declared that the "consequences" of "too little and too late" American aid to China "are frightening."

Bridges, chairman of the Senate appropriations committee, also heads a special foreign aid "watch dog" group.

The senator said he is calling a special meeting of the congressional foreign aid committee for Dec. 2.

He said the situation in China is so desperate that "a positive and effective American aid program is urgently needed to prevent the Communists from taking over the whole of China, lock, stock and barrel." He added:

"These Communist forces now spreading over all of North China are no simple group of indignant patriots. They are part and parcel of the Moscow-controlled legions of world revolution."

UN Mediator Would Give Jew-Held City To Arabs

PARIS, Nov. 12—United Nations Palestine Mediator Ralph Bunche proposed today that Egyptian forces be permitted to occupy the strategic town of Kurnub in the heart of the Jewish-occupied Negev region.

The proposal that the Egyptians be allowed into Kurnub, 22 miles southeast of Biblical Beersheba, was expected to draw a torrent of protest from the Israeli government.

Bunche made the proposal in a statement to a special seven-nation Security Council committee on Palestine.

After hearing Bunche the committee decided that it would hear the views of an Egyptian spokesman on the mediator's proposals at 3 p. m. and an Israeli spokesman an hour later.

An expected meeting of the Balkan conciliation commission to prepare the groundwork for a "peace parley" by representatives of Greece, Yugoslavia, Bulgaria and Albania meanwhile was postponed.

ASSEMBLY President Dr. Herbert Evatt and Secretary General Trygve Lie decided to postpone the meeting until Monday.

Attention is focussed as well on American Secretary of State Marshall who will hold his first open news conference at this session of the United Nations.

There is little expectation, however, that Marshall will shed much light on extensive closed-door negotiations which now are under way in Paris on major problems.

There is hopeful speculation, nevertheless, that he may give some inkling regarding the United States stand on the involved Palestine question, on the efforts to settle the Berlin deadlock and possibly something about the East-West "cold war."

2 Girls Unhurt When Pinned In Upset Auto

Two 16-year-old Washington C. H. girls narrowly escaped injury Thursday when their automobile overturned on the Florence Chapel road pinning them inside the car.

Deputy Sheriff Vern L. Pontius said the vehicle was driven by Peggy Reichelderfer and that Betty Baker was riding with her when the vehicle overturned on a curve near the Gerhardt farm.

Both girls were freed from the wreckage by two unidentified motorists who appeared on the scene shortly after the mishap, Deputy Pontius reported.

He said one of the men suffered a lacerated hand when he rammed his fist through one of the car windows to free the girls.

BOTH GIRLS were examined by a Circleville physician and released. Miss Reichelderfer (Continued on Page Two)

Butch Is Good Cop, Likes Everyone Except Postmen: Feeling's Mutual

Least publicized member of the Circleville police department turned up Friday to be one of the most thorough investigators on the force who knows every pole and parking meter post on his beat.

This unauthorized cop performs his duties without a badge or financial compensation from the city and, except for a free breakfast every morning, he has no axes to grind with the salary clerk.

Fellow policemen on the force claim this unsung hero is fearless and when the going is tough he has the tenacity of a bulldog.

Matter of act, he is a bulldog named "Butch."

The five-year-old mixture of bulldog and boxer is owned by Dr. G. D. Phillips. Butch, who looks every inch of his name, took to law enforcement awhile back when he lost faith with postmen.

Dr. Phillips says he doesn't know when the critter first became "public-duty" minded, but as a pup he helped deliver mail all over the northend of Circleville.

Then came the parting of the ways with Uncle Sam's letter carriers. A new mailman nicknamed Butch with a strap one morning and since that time the doctor has purchased two pair of trousers and a sweater for postmen who lost races with Butch.

This explains why all the Phillips mail now is being delivered to the doctor's dental office on West Main street.

Jake Hunsinger, City Hall custodian, has assigned the eighth member of Circleville's seven-man police force to special task of watching over the city's erring canines and felines.

be put to death on Pearl Harbor Day—Dec. 7, 1948.

They based this prediction on the time schedule announced by Gen. Douglas MacArthur for consideration of appeals from the sentences handed down by the military tribunal.

MacArthur, who has the final say on the verdicts in his capacity as Supreme Allied Commander, gave the convicted Japanese war criminals seven days in which to file appeals with him.

He ruled that the appeals must be in his office by next Friday, Nov. 19.

The sentences were pronounced in a hushed courtroom after the tribunal had found all 25 defendants guilty on one to ten of the several-score counts of the indictment.

Tojo was found guilty on all ten counts which the justices ruled that the prosecution had proved.

These counts included conspiracy to wage and the waging of an aggressive war as well as the perpetration of mass atrocities in every Pacific theatre of World War II.

THE MILITARY tribunal followed the precedent first established in the 1946 Nuremberg trials that aggressive war and war atrocities constitute violations of international law, punishable by death or imprisonment.

Ordered to go to the gallows along with the 63-year-old Tojo were a half dozen more of Japan's erstwhile engineers of aggression.

They are Kenji Doihara, 64, the Japanese "Lawrence of Manchuria," who plotted the 1931 Mukden incident that launched Japan's war of conquest against China.

Gen. Seishiro Itagaki, 62, former war minister who later commanded Japanese troops in Singapore where thousands of Allied prisoners were tortured and murdered.

Gen. Heitaro Kimura, 59, Tojo's vice war minister convicted of chief responsibility for atrocities upon Allied war prisoners in Burma.

Gen. Iwane Matsui, field commander held principally to blame for the 1937 "Rape of Nanking" during which 200,000 persons were butchered in six weeks.

Gen. Akio Muto, 55, American-educated former head of Japan's military affairs bureau who served as chief of staff for Gen. Tomoyuki Yamashita, hanged for war crimes in the Philippines.

Koki Hirota, 65, former premier who drew up the master blueprint for Japan's successive invasions of China.

First Step Long Drop, Man Finds

COLUMBUS, Nov. 12—Absent-minded William Sheridan, 50, was in fair condition today, but his back and shoulders hurt him as he lay in a Columbus hospital.

Sheridan drove his car into a service station yesterday, and stepped out a few moments later.

In the meantime, a grease rack had hauled the auto 10 feet in the air.

Rotarians Hear Conservation Expert, Lockbourne Base Officer

Allen Pretzman, attorney for the Scioto-Sandusky conservancy program, was principal speaker at the Thursday meeting of Circleville Rotary Club.

Introduced to club members by James I. Smith, Pretzman devoted his talk to the plans forwarded by Columbus to build a new dam to replenish its water supply.

"Columbus does need more water, of course," he said. "But in its haste to build it is not considering the full import of the value associated with cooperation with our conservancy project."

"The city has progressed on its dam project without considering the manifold benefits the whole Scioto Valley might receive from a combined effort of both the city and the conservancy organization."

He went on to explain that plans now considered by the Columbus city fathers call for a dam with a five-foot flashboard to retain additional water in dry weather.

HE POINTED out that the flashboard alone constitutes a hazard to Scioto Valley. In a severe flood the flashboard will tend to break away from the dam proper, releasing tons of water to an already swollen stream, he declared.

He stated that with a more closely-knit plan of operations between his conservancy group and the capital city, the proposed dam might be employed not only to provide a sufficient water supply to the city, but be used as a flood control for the valley and, indirectly, solve some of the pollution problems.

Other guests at Rotary luncheon included Don Long, visiting Rotarian from Chillicothe; Dr. Walter Brehm, district representative to Congress; and Lt. H. Taylor of Lockbourne Army Air Base.

Lt. Taylor spoke on the value of Lockbourne pertaining to national defense.

The lieutenant, a veteran with six years of air service, said that 90 percent of all Negro Air Force personnel were located at Lockbourne, including 77 pilots to man the 45 planes based there.

He said also that, in an emergency, the base could put one plane into the air every 20 seconds.

Taylor said that although the fighter planes used at the base may be considered "outmoded," recent participation in air tests in Florida showed the craft to be the most stable in the force.

$10,966 Suit Is Filed After Auto Accident

Harry G. Griner has filed a $10,966 damage suit in Pickaway County common pleas court against Edward L. Killen as the result of an auto-truck crash on Lovers Lane Nov. 28, 1946.

Griner, a former county surveyor, now is employed by the city of Circleville as city engineer. His brother, Fred P. Griner, with whom the plaintiff was riding, died of injuries suffered in the accident.

The petition filed by the city official declares the truck was driven by Jesse L. Eby, an agent for Killen, and cites three grounds for negligence.

They are that the truck was travelling at excessive speed; that the rate of speed is contrary to city and state laws; and that the truck was on the wrong side of the road.

Griner alleges he suffered severe injuries in the accident which since have affected his health and at that time caused him to lose work.

For injuries, Griner is asking $10,000 plus $966 for loss of work and medical and hospital expenses.

Griner died at 7:30 p. m. Wednesday in her home in Whisler following a stroke suffered three weeks ago.

Born in Tarlton, she was the daughter of Franklin and Malinda Eby Defenbaugh.

She is survived by her husband, Fred; two sons, Emmett Lutz of Amanda Route 2, and the Rev. U.S.'s Only Left-Handed Righthand Fiddler Here

By ROBERT GRUBB
Herald Staff Writer

Few men are possessed with a perseverance which will drive them with enough force to achieve an ambition, regardless of how trivial.

But one Pickaway Countian has been endowed with that perseverance.

He is 64-year-old W. E. Davison of Washington Township, who recently displayed what he had accomplished after 47 years of practice.

Carrying a battered fiddle case, Davison advised by-standers to "give a look and see something good."

The curious gathered around the old man while he unfasted his fiddle case, adjusted his bow and gave it a shot of resin.

They were mildly surprised in the next few minutes, however, when the man grasped the neck of the violin in his right hand, held the bow with his left and began fiddlin' "Home on the Range" with creditable ease.

FULL IMPORT of the event failed to soak in to the non-musical onlookers until the man explained he had learned to play a right-hand violin, strung for a right-handed player, with a left-handed approach. They did know, however, the little man looked a trifle awkward as he played.

Finishing the piece, Davison looked at his watchers speculatively and coyly asked: "Know how many fellers in Ohio can do that?"

Then he decisively answered

Suspect Killed In Escape Try

CLEVELAND, Nov. 12—A 30-year-old Cleveland was shot and killed last night by two detectives when he attempted to escape the police who were questioning him.

He was Brodas Boatwright. A companion was arrested.

One shot was fired into Boatwright's wrist by detective William J. Uniack when Boatwright flashed a knife while being questioned after a taxi ride. The cab had telephoned his office to report "two suspicious fares" and to ask for police assistance.

Boatwright then began running and Detective Raymond A. Mencini, who had handcuffed the companion, fired four more shots from a nearby police cruiser. The victim died 20 minutes later at St. Luke's hospital.

According to detectives, both men answer descriptions of a pair who have been sought in connection with three cab robberies this week.

Ex-Red Warns Commies Plan 'Soviet Day'

NEW YORK, Nov. 12—Louis Budenz, former Communist official, asserted today that Communists plan to try to paralyze America's major industrial cities in the event war breaks out between the United States and Russia.

In a signed article being published in Collier's Magazine, Budenz declares that if "Soviet Day" comes the Communists plan to stage political strikes in Pittsburgh, Chicago, Detroit, Cleveland and San Francisco.

Budenz, who at one time was managing editor of The Daily Worker, Communist newspaper published in New York City, says the Soviet fifth column in the United States is growing stronger with each day.

The San Francisco general strike of 1934, he writes, was an "almost perfect example" of the effectiveness of the political strike.

He reports that this strike was engineered from the underground by Communist organizations and proved that they could stop the shipment of American armaments to the Far East at any time the Communists chose.

The Communists have been preparing for "Soviet Day" in America—the day when war begins between Russia and the

Poultrymen Give Truman The Bird

COLUMBUS, Nov. 12 — Pollsters have been getting the bird ever since the election, but President Truman will get the best one of all.

It's a 16-and one-half-pound Thanksgiving turkey—the most nearly perfect produced in Ohio this year, and it comes from the Ohio International Dressed Turkey Show, sponsored by the Ohio State university poultry science club.

Half a dozen club members will present Mr. Truman with the grand champion broad breasted bronze hen from the Wilford hatchery at Elyria on Nov. 23 at 11 a. m.

Presentation will take place at the White House.

U. S.—for 25 years, according to Budenz.

On this day, he says, they expect to get their chief support from labor unionists, farmers, Negroes and youth.

Royall Says America Must 'Keep Ready'

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Nov. 10 —Army Secretary Royall says he does not believe war is imminent but warned that the U. S. must adopt a firm attitude and adequate military preparations to avoid it.

In an Armistice Day speech before the official World Peace Luncheon, Royall said "we face a troubled world again and find our gaze turning unwillingly but hypnotically toward at least the possibility of another world war. The secretary added:

"Again we detect the idea of war. Again we have an overwhelming urge to avoid it. This time we must implement our desires and wishes and hopes. We must act to see that war is avoided, if possible.

"The mistakes of the past must be examined so that they will not occur in the future. We failed our first great history test between 1918 and 1941. We must not fail it again. We must step around the pitfalls and snares and mistakes that helped bring on the last two wars."

Valuable Packs Claimed Lost

NEW YORK, Nov. 12 — Two packages insured for $100,000 and valued at "far more" by their owner, Producer-Writer

Arch Oboler, were reported lost while enroute from New York to Los Angeles by Railway Express.

Tracers were sent out from the Railway Express agency's east and west coast offices to find the parcels which contain 30,000 feet of color film for a television series and transcribed tape recordings for 36 half-hour radio shows. They were scheduled to arrive in Los Angeles Nov. 3.

PONTIAC

A Product of General Motors

Even Better than it Looks!

When we tell you that a Pontiac is even better than it looks, we realize that we are making a strong statement about Pontiac quality. But here is an automobile so thoroughly good that there is no practical limit to its usefulness, if it is given the proper kind of care. Here is a car so good that even its second and third owners pay it the highest compliments. Here is a car so good that its dependability lasts on and on while the miles and months roll by.

Here is a car so good that owners say they prefer its performance to that of any car they have ever driven. And here is a car so good that its price on a used car lot is often far higher than the price of cars which cost far more when new. In short, here is a car so good that it would make you very, very happy—on every count! Please remember this when you order your next car—and order a Pontiac . . . the car that is always good, and always getting better.

NEW PEAK TO CLIMB

"IS THAT a new mountain? I must climb it." This is the reaction of the adventurous souls who are responsible for many of the daring achievements of the world. Some such spirits as these must be E. E. Shipton and H. W. Tilman, Englishmen who took part in efforts to scale Mt. Everest, the world's highest mountain. They are now reported to have tried to ascend Bogdo Ola, the recently discovered mountain in Western China, which war-time flyers wrongly reported as being higher than Everest.

Bogdo Ola is only 18,000 feet high, and Tilman and Shipton went several thousand feet higher than that in their unsuccessful tries at Everest. Yet any mountaineer knows that height is only one of the obstacles which make mountain-climbing perilous and sometimes impossible. One of the hardest mountains ever conquered is only 12,000 feet high, but that lay far below the Antarctic Circle. It is Mt. Erebus, the active volcano that tries vainly to warm those everlasting snows. British mountaineers in the Shackleton expedition in the first decade of this century mastered Erebus. Bogdo Ola, though higher, should not be much more difficult in good weather.

CENSUS QUESTIONS

MANY people would like the Census Bureau to do their work for them. Questions to be asked in the 1950 census are now under compilation, and the requests for inclusion are many. A group of lawyers would like to know how many persons have made their wills. Some churches want to find out how many believe in God. Investment houses would be gratified to learn how many people work for a living, and how many live off investments. Another business group thinks that the government should find out how many families have bought burial plots.

The chances are that few of these queries will get into the final questionnaire, unless the American Statistical Association, chief adviser of the Census Bureau, thinks them suitable. It is already believed that the Association will turn thumbs down on statistics as to the number of blondes, brunettes and redheads.

If the information seekers were questioned in their turn, it would be interesting to learn how many believe that the government should keep strictly out of activities that can be carried on by private business.

One of the queerest facts about life is the way men blandly assume that they are the superior sex. Women know better, but are sensible enough not to argue the point.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

One of the major fallacies that has caused so much destruction of life and property is that human nature is the same the world over and never changes.

That idea confused President Roosevelt at Yalta and James Byrnes at Potsdam. The popular psychologists, among whom the pollsters used to be the most popular, made a science of it.

The Kinsey Report is a characteristic of that kind of science. The assumption is that if mathematics tells you something about the workings of the human mind, it is possible to deduce everything.

Actually, no two human beings think or act alike under identical circumstances. Each individual is something apart from all others. Guglielmo Ferrero, in his book, "The Reconstruction of Europe," sagely puts the problem this way:

"In a universe which is governed by the law of causality, the human mind is alone distinguished by its freedom. Every piece of iron exposed to heat always reacts in the same way. It expands, turns red, then white, softens, and finally liquefies. The forecast is unmistakable, and all human labor is based on the security afforded by countless similar forecasts. The reactions of the human mind to physical or mental forces acting upon it are on the contrary variable and far more unpredictable. One man will react quite differently from another to the same circumstances; the same man will not necessarily react tomorrow as he reacts today.

Collective reactions seem even more capricious and difficult to foresee than individual reactions. Every human mind is the condensation of a mysterious force which explodes under the shock of life with intensity and in different and unforeseen directions, at will or as it can. That is why no science of the mind and of history analogous to the science of matter and nature has been formulated; one is even forced to consider whether the word 'science' can be applied in the same sense to the physical and intellectual life of men, to the chemistry and history of societies."

That is one of the reasons why we have wars and international disagreements and why elections are won and lost. George Marshall, for instance, dislikes Chiang Kai-shek because he is obstinate and those who surround him are crooked. Chiang is obstinate because he insists that he understands the Chinese Communists and that General Stilwell and Marshall and the American ambassador to China, John Leighton Stuart, do not.

This would be as important as a ladies aid discussion of the relative merits of knitting needles were it not that because these otherwise intelligent men failed to understand each other, Soviet Russia probably will conquer China and the United States will be short of rubber and tin and pepper and spices again; Alaska and the Philippines will be imperiled; the cost of our military defenses will rocket sky-high; and we shall have to pay more taxes.

Obstinacy here arises from the not unusual assumption that all men are alike in their responses to challenges, when the fact is that each man is different. Mr. Roosevelt made the same error about Stalin.

CHAPTER FORTY-EIGHT

HELENA said, "I came to say goodbye and to say how terribly sorry I shall always be that you were there. That you had to go through what you did. It was my fault. Not only the accident, which happened because I was careless, thinking of other things, while my mind should have been free to concentrate on what I was doing. Also I was more tired than I realized. Not just that, but because I would not consent to send Erich away long ago, when everyone, the doctors, Tante Elsa, Brad and even, in his clearest moments, Erich himself, begged me to. But I could not endure it for him. I thought we'd manage, somehow, during the time he had left. I knew it wasn't long."

"Please don't blame yourself," Gail said gently.

"I must," Helena answered.

"And you were very brave. Tante Elsa told me. Also she told me the things Erich said to you in his frenzy about me and Brad."

"I'm sorry for that, too," Gail said.

"It doesn't matter," said Gail.

"I had hoped it would," said Helena.

"After I thought about it. For Brad's sake, I suppose. Even though it wasn't true. Did you think it was true?"

"No," said Gail. "I didn't. And felt myself free and strong and convinced. Perhaps," she added, "that's why—it doesn't matter."

"I don't understand you," Helena said.

"I never have. But I may not see you again. Brad wants me to come back again when I am rested, but I think I shall find work to do elsewhere when the time comes. I can work anywhere, and there would be nothing to bring me back. Tante and I will find a place for ourselves. Brad has been very kind. And I have found him a new assistant, also a woman," she added, "an older woman, very clever, very dedicated."

"I'm sorry you aren't coming back," said Gail.

"Are you? Thank you," Helena said with her curious formality.

"But it would only be painful. I must go on," she said half to herself, "to forget the unhappy things and remember only the good. Otherwise there's no advance, no growth. You see, my life was Erich and my work. When we were young, when we were happy, I could not divide one from the other just as he could not separate me from his work. We were very fortunate. Then there was the time of terror, of having no work, but still having each other. After that, the years of separation when I dreamed sleep because of what I must dream about him; yet knowing that it was worse than any dream. And after I was safe, and could work again, the waiting and the hope. And finally—"

"She was silent a moment. Then she asked, 'How was it possible that anyone could think I had anything to give another human being? Erich, in sanity, could not think that. When he thought it, he was not responsible. He had been wrong to me, in his healthy body, his wonderful mind, his comprehension and tenderness. I tell you we were as one person. They destroyed his body and, eventually, his mind. But he was still mine, he is now.'"

"What?" said Gail incredulously.

"Well," said Gail, "she saw you every day. Not with company manners either. But probably stomping and swearing and throwing things."

"Did she tell you that, too?"

"No. But you do, don't you?"

"I have, on occasion. Now and then it's necessary to let off steam."

"She asked, 'Do you know why I didn't fall in love with you?'"

"Gail, for heaven's sake!"

"I suppose you don't. I didn't until a little while ago. You made me feel inferior," she said. "You gave everything, asked for nothing. I felt humble. No one likes that. I thought you were perfection. I thought I could never live up to you. And I was so hideously grateful."

"What?" said Gail incredulously.

"Well," said Gail, "she saw you every day. Not with company manners either. But probably stomping and swearing and throwing things."

"Did she tell you that, too?"

"No. But you do, don't you?"

"I have, on occasion. Now and then it's necessary to let off steam."

What we lost, we lost. I won't tell you I was easily resigned. I wasn't. I burned myself out, remembering, and suffering through remembering. I burned myself free," she said, "to love him, very much more. He knew it, for I told him over and over. It was only when he was not himself—when he was disturbed."

"Don't try to tell me," Gail said, "agonized for her, 'don't...'"

"I had to," Helena said, "otherwise you could not understand about Brad. I have such deep devotion for him," she said quietly, "but never the other... not even its shadow." She added, "And I am so grateful to him."

"Do you mind that?" Gail asked her.

Helena looked at her, bewildered. She asked, "Mind... being grateful? Why should I? I worked with and for him, I carried my share."

She rose and looked down at Gail. "I am glad about the child," she said, "but sorry that because of my obsession, you, and the child with you, came into danger."

Helena had gone, and Andrews had come for the tray, clucking over its appearance, and departed, and Gail sat alone in the pleasant room, an unopened book on her lap. Helena had said, "No, don't ring, I will stop and say good night to Brad and Mrs. Spencer, on my way out." And Gail had waited for Brad to come upstairs.

He came, after what seemed a long time. "But I thought you'd be in bed," he told her.

"I'm hungry," she said plaintively.

"Good Lord, didn't you eat your dinner?"

"No. Don't ring for Andrews. Can't you find your way about your own kitchen?"

"I'll do my best. What do you want?"

"Milk, crackers, fruit, if you find it... how about cheese?"

When he came back he brought a double portion. He said, "I didn't eat much either."

Presently she looked at him, a white rim of milk about her mouth.

"Helena was never in love with you," she said sedately.

"Wipe your mouth." He looked at her quickly. "She wasn't?" he said. "Well, that's interesting. Who told you so besides me?"

"She did. Personally I think she's a fool."

"What?" said Brad incredulously.

"Well," said Gail, "she saw you every day. Not with company manners either. But probably stomping and swearing and throwing things."

"Did she tell you that, too?"

"No. But you do, don't you?"

"I have, on occasion. Now and then it's necessary to let off steam."

"She asked, 'Do you know why I didn't fall in love with you?'"

"Gail, for heaven's sake!"

"I suppose you don't. I didn't until a little while ago. You made me feel inferior," she said. "You gave everything, asked for nothing. I felt humble. No one likes that. I thought you were perfection. I thought I could never live up to you. And I was so hideously grateful."

"What?" said Gail incredulously.

"Well," said Gail, "she saw you every day. Not with company manners either. But probably stomping and swearing and throwing things."

"Did she tell you that, too?"

"No. But you do, don't you?"

He moved the table aside and an apple bounced rosy along the rug. He lifted her feet out of his way and sat down on the end of the couch. "You were grateful," he repeated. "Fast tense?"

She said, "I'm not, any more. Not in that—burdened sort of way. In quite another. Helena said she was grateful to you and I asked her if she minded. She looked at me as if I were two years old. Why should she mind? she said, she did her share. It's that simple. Once I feel I'm doing my share."

"Here we go," he said helplessly, "right back to the baby again."

"Not the baby." She added thoughtfully, "I suppose I'll believe in the baby when I see it. Just at present I can't, quite. Have you forgotten that I married you for money?"

He grew white, he looked as if he'd like to shake her.

"Sometimes I try," he said.

"Don't because I found I hadn't... I had just married you," she said, "with money. There's a difference. How can I detach you from it? I tried, while you were talking about it, before dinner. But I can't. It's as much a part of you as anything else; it's made your environment, it's part of your pattern. Yet if you lost it now, you'd be the same... You scared me a little tonight. I don't really know you. I'd like to, no matter how long it takes, the rest of our lives even."

He put his arms around her and held her. He said, "I don't know what's been eating me, really. I always believed some girl would marry me for the money."

"With," she corrected.

"With, then, I can look in a mirror, can't I? I'm the guy no one notices, remember? Mr. Average Man. My teeth and hair are my own, I have excellent health. But no glamour boy."

"Neither is Jimmy Stewart," she said dreamily, "and a couple of million women are crazy about him, including me."

"Now I'm to worry about Jimmy Stewart, who stands ten feet high and flew the very far out of an airplane? Gail, you've never been unkind to me. You wouldn't be now? You wouldn't let me hope—"

"Haven't you always, did you ever stop? Maybe I hoped too."

She sighed and leaned heavily against him. "Happiness doesn't come in one piece like a prefabricated house," she said drowsily.

"What?" said Gail.

"Don't split hairs, or houses. You have to build," Gail said.

Very soon she would be asleep, and he would put her to bed, he thought, and she only half waking. And then he would lie at a little distance from her, watching her across the dark space between, waiting for the day. He said, stroking her forehead, "Don't talk, darling, there's so much time for talking."

But she spoke, so low that he could not hear, close as he was to her now, and she herself did not know if she spoke aloud or only thought, fleetly, in a beginning dream. She said, "It's just as easy, after all, to fall from loving into love..."

'LITTLE REGARD FOR LAW'

City Leaders Given Call To Parley Traffic Safety

A meeting of 14 top level Circleville businessmen has been called for 8 p. m. Monday in the probate judge's office in the courthouse to discuss a projected safety campaign for this city.

While the campaign is aimed primarily at traffic hazards in communities where vehicular traffic is more congested, officials declare the overall project will be countywide.

A. Vaden Couch, president of Circleville Rotary Club, said Thursday there is a definite need for a safety program in this county. He declared:

"Look at our traffic death rate in the first 10 months of this year. With the total now standing at 22, the death rate is more than three times higher than in all of 1947."

He emphasized that such a campaign is not the sole responsibility of one group of individuals. He said "a safety campaign can be successful only if each participant and each individual becomes safety-minded."

ALL CIRCLEVILLE schools, civic groups and industries are urged to back the plan. Couch said. Kiwanis Club already has a safe-driving plan in motion which would dovetail with the Rotary program.

Couch warned: "Our children have little regard for the traffic lights and traffic laws of our city. They seem to purposely ride their bicycles through red lights and disobey other traffic regulations."

He called upon all parents to cooperate in the program. Couch declared:

"The fundamental training for our safety program must begin in the home by the fathers and mothers of the children. It's

Navy Signup Data Detailed

Men enlisting in the Navy, under 18 years of age, on the one-year enlistment program, are given the same recruit training, duty assignments, opportunities for schools, advancement in rating and leave as those who enlist for the regular term of three years.

During training, they are classified to determine the type of work for which they are best suited, and are sent to service schools, in proportion, to the regular enlistees. While not eligible for overseas bases, they may be assigned to ships operating in foreign waters. They are advanced in rating and granted leave in accordance with Regular Navy policy. At the expiration of the year enlistment, they may reenlist for a term of three years, or be discharged to enter a reserve unit.

Barrow-Pusher In Cincinnati

CINCINNATI, Nov. 12—Larry Hightower, wheelbarrow and all, rolled into Cincinnati yesterday.

Since leaving the state of Washington on July 4, 1946, Hightower has shoved his barrow across 22 states for a total of 8,128 miles.

He said he averaged 14 to 18 miles a day and experienced little trouble with equipment breakdowns. The tire on his wheel barrow is holding up fine.

It is another story with the Hightower footgear. To date he has worn out 14 pairs of shoes and 976 pairs of socks.

Hightower hopes to lecture in

Colic In Babies May Develop Into Asthma

PORTLAND, Ore., Nov. 12—Babies who have a rash or colic may be allergic and may develop hay fever or asthma when they grow older.

Babies who continually spit up small amounts of milk or whose tonsils grow back likewise may be allergic.

That is the warning of Dr. Norman W. Clein, director of the Children's Clinic and chief of pediatric services at King County hospital in Seattle. He is one of several experts conducting a course in allergies at the University of Oregon medical school this week.

Among Dr. Clein's discoveries are: Two thirds of 100 allergic babies he and associates studied later developed chronic hay fever. One third got Summer hay fever.

A fourth developed asthma. One in three developed exema.

One in four got hives or stomach trouble.

Dr. Clein reported that as the children grow older most of them outgrow sensitivity to food. Instead, they become sensitive to house dust and such things as list from feather pillows, kapok in mattresses, woolen blankets, pets and fuzzy toys.

Cincinnati before continuing his trip to Texas. Later he hopes to visit South America on a goodwill tour in the service of democracy.

Man Elected, But He Is Ineligible

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Nov. 12—The newly-elected state's attorney of Lawrence County, Ill., may not be able to take office. He flunked his bar exam.

Mark O. Roberts, secretary of the state board of law examiners, has disclosed that Philip Benefiel, 25-year-old successful Democratic candidate, failed to pass tests given last month.

The announcement left doubt that the youthful Benefiel could become a state's attorney. He will get another chance in March examinations, but the date is after he is due to take over his new duties.

Baruch Daughter Loser In Suit

COLUMBIA, S. C., Nov. 12—Counsel of Belle Baruch studied today an opinion assessing a $10,000 judgment against the daughter of Elder Statesman Bernard Baruch for the death of a Scarsdale, N. Y., man in her plane.

The suit was brought in Columbia federal district court by the estate of John Zozula, who was killed in the 1946 crash of Miss Baruch's ship in Wichita, Kan.

Witnesses testified that the plane's pilot, also killed in the crash, had been drinking before the take-off.

MEXICAN DOCTORS WINNING

Anti-Hoof-Mouth Vaccine
Now Believed Perfected

LAREDO, Tex., Nov. 12—Two Mexican doctors have developed an anti-hoof and mouth vaccine that may permit American authorities to lift the quarantine on Mexican cattle and meat by January 1950.

Dr. Fernando Camargo and Dr. Tellez Giron, expect that by December of this year 1,000,000 head of clove-footed animals will be vaccinated monthly.

It was estimated that about 600,000 head have been vaccinated to date. The so-called "infected zone," which embraces 15 Mexican states, has between 8,000,000 and 10,000,000 head of cattle which must be immunized before the quarantine can be lifted.

The Mexican doctors began experimenting with the vaccine in the American-Mexican hoof and mouth disease commission laboratories after a half million infected cattle had been slaughtered over the last two years.

MEXICAN farmers staged riots over what they termed the unnecessary destruction of their cattle but authorities asserted it was the only way to stop the plague.

Alumni Cage Loop Roars Through Rough Evening

Pickaway County Alumni basketball league played what may well be its most evenly matched games of the season Thursday night in Pickaway County Fairgrounds Coliseum.

In all four contests, each was so close that only seven points separated the two teams which posted the largest margin of difference in the tilts, while one game went into four overtime periods and another went into two extra periods.

Final results show that Williamsport edged out Jackson grads 29-27 in an overtime tilt; Pickaway posted a 28-24 victory over Walnut; Circleville eked out a meagre 53-51 win over Monroe in four overtime periods; and Scioto leveled New Holland 32-25 in the evening's finale.

Burney McGee, sharp eyed referee overseeing the matches, caught the usual amount of beefs in the tight tilts, although maintaining his record of never having lost a tilt on the court.

HE CONTENTS the boys gradually are learning they are no longer boys but men playing independent basketball—a far cry from the pussyfoot brand they knew when they were wet behind-the-ears high school lads.

In the first tilt of the evening, Jackson battled the Deercreek crew to a 23-23 tie at the end of the regular game. Ross Bidwell posted two points in the first overtime period to give the Jackson Townshippers a slight lead, but the score was tied shortly after by a bucket from Paul Schein.

In the second overtime, Jim Picklesimer looped in a long one to put the Deercreekers ahead, Kenneth Bumgarner evened the score for Jackson, and as time ran out Williamsport's Don McDill potted the game-clinching ally.

Picklesimer, winner of the Bob Bowsher Memorial Trophy in the county high school basketball tourney last Spring, paced scoring in the game with a total of 15 points for the Deercreekers.

Second game of the evening between Pickaway and Walnut, while no walkaway, was decided in the regular gametime period. Pickaway led Walnut 13-11 at halftime, clinching the tilt in the last half by posting 15 tallies and holding the Walnut team to 13.

Bob Young, Pickaway center, and Jim Weaver, forward for Walnut, tied in scoring honors, each collecting 11 points.

Third game of the evening, between Circleville and Monroe, was the nerve-wracker of the night, with four overtime periods necessary to determine a winner. Both teams launched protests to completely foul the program.

With but a second to go in the regular portion of the scrap, and with the score standing at 35-34 in favor of Monroe, Referee McGee slapped a technical foul on Gavilan, Cuban welterweight, is a slight favorite to defeat Tony Pellone of New York in their 10-round bout at Madison Square Garden tonight.

The winner will be considered a leading challenger for Ray Robinson's 147-pound crown.

Gavilan, who has a record of 49 victories out of 54 fights, lost to Robinson in a title match Sept. 13.

Pellone, who is in the midst of a comeback, has gained many supporters by his improvement in recent bouts.

Carroll Back Paces Scorers

CLEVELAND, Nov. 12 — Carl Taseff, fullback for John Carroll university, is far out in front today in the yards gained by rushing department in the Ohio Conference and leads in total offense.

According to conference figures released yesterday, Taseff has gained 833 yards rushing while Nap Bell of Mount Union holds second place with 589 yards. Taseff's 819 figure leads in total offense, but Bobby McFarland of Ohio Wesleyan is pressing the Carroll streak with 778.

Warren Grover, Monroe guard, for leaving the floor.

BILL WELLER, lanky Circleville pivot man, was designated to toss the free throw, sinking the agate to knot the score at 35-all.

In the first overtime, Bob Moon posted a field goal for Circleville, but seconds later, Jack Hix leveled the score at 27-all. Both teams posted three tallies in the next overtime period, Circleville launching its protest for being unable to call a time out without penalty and a man injured on the floor. Injured was Big Bill Weller, who developed a charley horse.

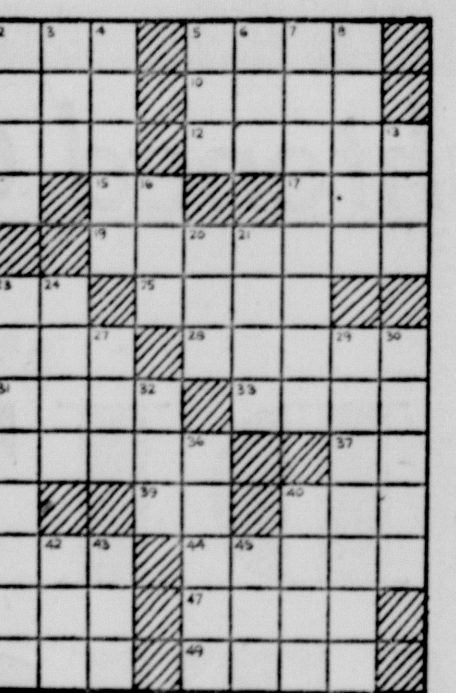

Third overtime period was really nip and tuck with each side scoring seven tallies as the horn sounded to end the round, score standing at 47-all.

In the fourth overtime, Circleville forged ahead of the Monroe Township aggregation when Moon, Weller and Leon Sims scored buckets whole holding Monroe to tallies by Don Smith and Kenny Reid.

Final Tilts Ahead For Ohio Teams

Denison Hoping For 18th Win

COLUMBUS, Nov. 12—Final exams are in order for 12 Ohio college football teams this week-end as "king football" begins his hasty retreat for 1948.

Marietta jumped the gun on the state's other teams heading for a weekend windup by dropping its season finale, 34-13, last night against West Virginia Wesleyan.

Tomorrow is the big day for the remaining 12, however. Two straight undefeated seasons and a win-string of 18 straight will be the target of the Big Red of Denison against Case Tech.

A Denison victory would sew up possession of the Ohio Conference title for the Big Red and give the Granville school a good claim to the mythical state crown.

Although Case has won just two of six games this season, the Denison Huskies are likely to find anything but easy pickings. The Rough Riders knocked off rugged Baldwin-Wallace, 26-25, last week and have been pointing toward the Denison scrap.

LITTLE Rio Grande closes its 1948 grid book in a battle with the powerful undefeated Heidelberg Student Princes. As for ens, Wilberforce rests this Ohio's two other unscarred elevweek while Bowling Green takes on Morningside.

Ashland and Hiram mark an end to this season's grid warfare together on Ashland's home grounds while Findlay and Ohio Northern do a bit of the same in the Polar Bears' territory.

Muskingum closes its season against Washington and Jefferson, and in other getaway games Kenyon takes on Sewanee, Defiance battles Bluffton, Capital faces Otterbein, Wilmington tangles with Thiel, and Wittenberg tackles Wooster.

Dayton smashes into Oklahoma City and John Carroll plays host to Xavier in what may develop into the weekend's top games.

In Mid-America Conference warfare involving Ohio schools, Western Reserve entertains Cincinnati and Ohio U. travels to Butler.

Other Saturday struggles find Mount Union at Baldwin-Wallace, Wichita at Miami, Colorado college at Oberlin, Ohio Wesleyan at Lafayette, Canisius at Toledo and Gustavus Adolphus at Youngstown.

Kent State and Akron, Summit County's "friendly rivals," collide in tonight's only fracas.
